7.4 Contribution to environmental awareness / protection

Energy Conservation

Making the campus Eco-Friendly is the major concern of the college administration. It takes expert opinion, plans strategies to sustain environment, and implement them effectively involving students and staff.

Following measures have been taken to save energy :

- LEDs have replaced CFLs and fluorescent tubes
- Low lux level is maintained in non-reading and non-working areas to save power.
- Lights and fans are switched off immediately when not required.
- All transformers are disconnected and isolated from the wall outlet receptacles at the end of the working day.
- Computers, printers, copiers etc. are disconnected at the end of the day.
- Electronics equipments and gadgets are turned off during non-working hours.
- All ACs are set at 22-24 degree Celsius.
- Members of the student council and faculty have been deputed to check the wastage of electrical energy by ensuring that fans and tube lights should not run in unoccupied classrooms or laboratories.
- A notice regarding switching off fans and tube lights has been put up in all classrooms, laboratories and corridors.
- Tube lights are cleaned regularly and walls & ceilings are painted in white colour to enhance visibility
- False ceiling has been done in AC rooms as it causes cooling in lesser time and thereby saving energy

Use of Renewable Energy

- Solar water heaters have been installed in all the three hostels to save electricity.
- Solar water pump is used for watering the plants instead of electric pump.

Water Harvesting

- Rain water harvest system has been developed in which rain water is allowed to collect in the storage tank and allowed to enter the bore well for ground water recharging.
- In the playgrounds, rain water percolates through the soil.

Efforts for Carbon Neutrality

- Plantation of trees has been increased to sequester CO₂ emitted in the atmosphere
- The college has invested in green technologies such as solar power to reduce its carbon foot prints
- The college from the next session will encourage its employees and students to pool their travel to reduce the CO₂ emission.

7.5 Whether environmental audit was conducted? Yes ☐ No ☒

BEST PRACTICES

1. Title of the Practice : Starting of Women Development Cell

Goal : a) Training of girls students for their overall development

b) Training of women from lower economics strata and needy women

(class IV employees from the college campus) for income generation/self employment.

The context : After doing graduation, majority of the students get married and only a few students opt for higher studies and they lack basic knowledge regarding banking, insurance, consumer protection laws, money management, improved household practices, food adulteration and knowledge of nutrition which is required to lead a healthy and successful life.

Women in the lower strata do not occupy any important place in the family i.e. they can't play any role in decision making. They are ignored even for the basic necessities. Therefore, it was thought of instilling income generation skills for self employment amongst this type of women for their upliftment, Different skills like soap making, preparing jams, pickles, chutneys and squashes were introduces.

The Practice : The women development cell was started on October 26, 2017 in which 20 girls students and 25 women were enrolled. In the first meeting, the objectives of the cell were discussed and the action plan was chalked out with the help of beneficiaries enrolled under this programme.

The activities of the programme for women are as follows :

- i) Preparation of the soap
- ii) Preparation of the ladies suits
- iii) Preparation of Jams
- iv) Preparation of pickles
- v) Preparation of chutneys
- vi) Preparation of squashes

The activities of the programme for girls include lectures and demonstration (where required) on the following :

- i) Banking systems
- ii) Consumer Protection laws
- iii) Insurance
- iv) Money Management
- v) Improved household practices

- vi) Knowledge of nutrition
- vii) Cooking of low cost nutritious recipes.
- viii) Cleaning of common metals at home
- ix) Household methods to detect food adulterants

The whole programme was undertaken in the department of Home Science.

Evidence of Success : The cell Initiated with 45 number of beneficiaries and later the number grew to 65. Therefore, the practice is evidently successful. The college may have to extend this programme as per the increasing demand of the girl students and the women from the lower economics strata in the society after it gets popular.

Problems encountered and resources required : There had been no major problems. However, the minor problems regarding purchase of material were sorted out by the co-ordinators of the cell. Our principal and management is always accessible for any type of problem.

BEST PRACTICES

2. Title of the Practice : Joy of Giving

Goal : a) To give each one of us the opportunity to reach out and do something good-something that we always want to do.

b) To use the power of collective individual actions to make a difference.

c) It aims to take the focus away from oneself on to others.

The context : The joy of Giving week is being celebrated every year in our country covering Gandhi Jayanti (2nd Oct. – 8th Oct.) by act of giving-money, time, resources and skills by NGOs, Government Sectors, Schools, Colleges and General public to fulfill the social responsibility towards the community.

But our institution has turned this festival into a routine practice. Since Oct., 2016 to promote awareness and sensitivity among youth and encourage them to do random acts of kindness to people they don't even know.

The Practice : We engage youth in volunteering for the cause of their own choice as some students are from rich families who can donate money and other articles of households. But there are students who can't donate money but can give time for the social cause. Some are good at certain skills who contribute to the community by the skills they have. There are students who are ever ready for the cause of community. Therefore, the groups were prepared accordingly. The only condition is that each gift or act of donating/kindness should be meaningful and some thought should have gone into it.

One group of students has undertaken a massive clothes collection drive (in the form of dresses and clothes of household use) and other articles of household use and those were distributed to the needy people.

Our faculty members worked for fund raising which will be utilized for the purpose of welfare. In future, the students will also be involved in this activity. Some students opted to teach skills, some volunteers for adult education. Students also donated their own books for the use of poor students. The collection and distribution of the books was carried out by the student volunteers itself. There are students who are ever ready to donate blood as per requirement.

Evidence of Success : A good number of students volunteered themselves for random acts of kindness which will help them focus away from oneself on to others.

Problems encountered and resources required : There had been no major problem. However, if some minor problem arises, are sorted out by the faculty members in consultation with the principal and the college management.

The practice will get popular with time.
